

There is a patient that has a very large sore on their stomach
They have a corpse in their fridge that died on Saturday

There is only one medical cabinet that has all the medicines divided by patient, there are also general ones in case of emergencies. There is a lot of documentation that needs to be done, when giving medication, changing medication, and getting more medication.

Most of the patients aren't fully aware of their surroundings because of dementia and other issues.

Day 2

Saw how the dosetts are sorted, look at the medical sheet and double check the type of medication and strength.

Saw how the blood gets taken from an elderly patient, and what to do with it.

Saw how the blood pressure gets taken from an elderly patient, they use an electronic system which does it automatically.

Saw how they dispose used medication, it gets taken to the chemist and they deal with it

They also get the medication from the chemist; they order it over a fax machine then they prepare it. Everything needs to be documented

Day 3

A patient had a massive sore on his stomach. I saw how they removed the old bandage, cleaned the sore and then put on new bandages

There was a patient that had trouble hearing so they inspected the patient's ears and saw that there was wax in the way. Then they cleaned out the ears using water.

The nurse I was with talked about how they had to do an avvikelser because there were quite a few people that got sick a while ago.

The nurse also got told that there was a patient that couldn't sleep during the night, she decided that it would be best to use a narcotic to help her sleep.
